

SUCCESS OF MEDIATION DEPENDS ON YIELDING OF WILSON OR HUERTA

ONLY CONCESSIONS ON ONE SIDE OR THE OTHER CAN SAVE NIAGARA CONFERENCE.

NAON AT WASHINGTON

Argentine Diplomat Spends Day With Bryan and Wilson Urging Them to Modify Attitude on Provisional Government

Washington, June 19.—Mediation stands today on the brink of failure, only concessions by President Wilson or Huerta can save it.

When Senator Naon arrived here unexpectedly today he did not go to the hotel, but took up quarters in a room near the White House, indicating an intention to attend to the important business in hand with the least possible delay.

Deadline is Reached. Announcement at the White House that the president stands squarely on the principle enunciated in the statement of the American delegates, seemed to make it certain that the United States will not be satisfied with a thing less than a complete and final approval by the constitution.

Officials close to the president declared that all talk of further armed intervention or of a change of attitude on the part of the administration and outlining his future course.

The president has no plans for going before Congress with any phase of the Mexican question and all talk of further armed intervention is groundless at the present time.

Amounts to Ultimatum. Niagara Falls, Ont., June 19.—Just before the American delegates were notified that there would be no mediation, they were told in communication with the Washington government by telephone.

In some quarters the attitude of the Washington government was described as virtually an ultimatum, the acceptance of which by the American delegates would be the sole condition on which mediation would be continued.

The United States is a party to the mediation in the hope that it will lead to peace and that the peace will lead to prosperity.

Gives Inspiring Address.
The address by William C. King of Springfield, Mass., was an inspiring one, an appeal for higher ideals and their attainment. Speaking of education in its broader sense he defined it as the ability to know what you want, to know where to find it and having found it, to know how to use it.

"This is an age of dynamics," he said, "each searching for power, until power has become the slogan of the age. Nor is it an unworthy one, but we should bear in mind that it is not what we win that is permanent, those things which last for as through eternity are the things which we give.
College training is for giving that alone for getting. Character is all of life, and character is made of pure motives, loyalty to principle, service for others and reverence for God.
This should be our ideal."

New Faculty Members.
President Daland's annual statement spoke hopefully of the prospects for next year and paid a tribute to two members of the faculty who will not be with them during the coming year—Miss Swinney and Miss Sweeney. He announced the addition to the faculty of John N. Daland, who will begin his duties as professor of Latin in September. He also announced that Miss Ada E. Crandall, who has taught for two years in Janesville, would take Miss Swinney's place. He referred to the renouncing of the library and of plans for opening the library in the coming year. He referred to the organization of the Girls' Glee club and the English club, the success of the college in debates and in its athletics. He announced that the honors were as follows:

Freshman class: First honor, Grace L. Babcock of Iowa; second honor, Beth Davis of Milton.
Sophomore class: First honor, Stephanie Dahl of Illinois; second honor, Zea Zinn of Illinois; honorable mention, Odessa Davis of Iowa.
Junior class: First honor, William D. Burdick of Illinois; second honor, Loy F. Hurley of Iowa.

Senior class: First honor, Anna M.
Gurley of Milton; second honor, Marguerite Ingham of Indiana.
President Daland in his farewell words to the class, reminded them that the life of a student is not the life of a soldier, but rather the life of a citizen. He said that the life of a student is not the life of a soldier, but rather the life of a citizen.
He said that the life of a student is

DOGS FOLLOW TRAIL OF THIEF TO RIVER

Petty Thief Takes One Pair of Shoes
From Lucht Bros. Store.
Bloodhounds Follow
Trail.

Janesville's police bloodhounds were given their first test early this morning by Police Officer Sam Brown and demonstrated that they would become a valuable aid to the department. Late last night the shoe store of Lucht brothers, on the Corn Exchange was broken into and, although the thief ransacked the place

"CAL" AND "PAT. F." POLICE BLOODHOUNDS.

only one pair of shoes valued at four dollars was stolen.

Ingress was gained by cutting a portion of a window glass in the rear of the store and then unscrewing a bolt which locked the frame.
The robbery was discovered by Patrolman Cain at two o'clock and Mr. Lucht was called. Shoes were found strewn all over the store, the thief taking down boxes from all of the shelves and insuring them.

The fact that only one pair is missed
is a puzzle to the police.
Policeman Brown was called and the two bloodhounds placed on scent
where the store had been broken into. When the bloodhounds were picked up the trail and went through the alleys to the bank of the river at Fourth avenue bridge where they raised their heads and howled.
Three times the dogs were taken back each time followed the same trail and as the bounds obtained a good scent from the boxes and traveled over the same trail, the conclusion reached is that the culprit had taken a boat after stealing the shoes.

IS GIVEN NINETY DAYS FOR FIGHTING ON CAR

Roy Slawson, formerly of Janesville, who for the last few months has figured in escapades in Beloit, was brought to the Rock county jail
last night to serve ten days in solitary confinement on a slim diet of bread and water and in default of paying a fine of seventy-five dollars will serve eighty days under the commitment law for assaulting a conductor on a trolley car.

Slawson came to Janesville from Beloit Wednesday night to witness the boxing exhibition. On returning Slawson started to demonstrate his pugilistic ability on a conductor, who attempted to quiet the youth.
In the first round Slawson was quiet-ed by a passenger who objected to the language used by the youth in expressing his opinion of the conductor. Slawson was released by Judge Clark yesterday.

William Stowell of Beloit was brought to the county jail to serve ninety days for assault upon his wife.

TWO BELOITERS ARRESTED FOR INSULTING WOMEN.

The absence of Judge Maxfield from the municipal court this morning was made up by the arrest of two men from heavy fines for "mashing." The pair gave their names to the police as being Luedtke and Annier and were released after a lengthy lecture by Chief Champion.

Two trolley cars near Court house park yesterday afternoon, on the complaint of two women with whom the men attempted to start a fight. Not only was their efforts scattered by Chief of Police Champion took the pair in custody and gave them a new experience of spending a little behind the bars. As Judge Maxfield is in Milwaukee, Luedtke and Annier were released and told to waste no time in going back to Beloit with instructions to stay there, there.

GIRL AND BOY INJURED IN RUNAWAY YESTERDAY

Lella Goch and brother, Louis Goch, aged six years, sustained injuries when a horse driven by them took flight at the automobile truck
of the Gray Pop company and tipped
the buggy over, throwing the occupants down an embankment late yesterday afternoon.

Miss Goch was returning from Footville to her home east of the village and on a narrow stretch of road met the auto truck. The horse became unmanageable and ran up the embankment. The buggy was tipped over the girl, receiving injuries about the head and body. Her brother escaped with only minor bruises. Medical attention showed that Miss Goch was injured internally. The car was stopped and the driver aided in catching the horse and caring for Miss Goch, who was taken to her home.

YOUNG ITALIAN TAKEN TO COUNTY HOSPITAL

Suffering from pleurisy, a young Italian named P. Volpinterri, asked for aid by the police station, was being unable to work and in from pains in the chest. Chief of Police Champion gave the man the use of the private cell to spend the night, and this morning a physician was called.
Volpinterri was taken to the county hospital for medical attention under the physician's orders. Poormaier later found that the Italian came here from Racine, where he has relatives.

SAY GOOD-BY TO YOUR CORNS ROOTS AND ALL

Happy Feet Make Happy Faces

Say good-by to corns—good-by to pain that clouds your face and sours your mood. Paring corns won't remove the root. Blue-jay alone does that.
60,000,000 people have proved it on all kinds of feet.

Just apply one little Blue-jay to the corn that hurts you worst. Do it today.
The B & B was in Blue-jay loosens it up.
Day after tomorrow you lift out that corn,
root and all. It is gone—gone forever.
Send to Bangs & Block, Chicago, for a free sample of Blue-jay, postpaid.
Quicker yet, ask your druggist for a package of Blue-jay today, 15c and 25c.
Then say good-by to corns.

COOL WEATHER AIDS TOBACCO PLANTING

Plants Set Out This Week Have Scarcely Withed.—Complete
Work Soon.

The return of cooler weather has been a great help to the growers who are in the midst of the transplanting of another tobacco crop, says Edgerton Reporter. Lower temperature is not only more agreeable to the workers but has prevented hardly any wilting after the plants are set in the fields, and helped to bring about an early rooting of the plants, so there has been scarcely any resetting to be done except where the cut worms are getting busy. The worms, however, prove more troublesome in the cooler weather. The great bulk of the crop will be safely pitched in the fields by the close of the present week, which is about two weeks in advance of the usual date in this state. The growers are especially fortunate because there is scarcely any shortage of plants in any section, while in most localities the complaint is that the plants have reached the setting stage earlier than desired.

There is some work of packing and rehanding going on at the warehouses and arrangements are being made to start work at one of the stemming plants in this market the coming week.

There is nothing new regarding the market of cured leaf.
The shipments out of storage do not exceed 250 cases from this market at all points since last report.

Throw Washboard Away ---No More Rubbing

Oh, the Joy of It! "SKITCH" Cleans Clothes Better Than Rubbing
Does, and Makes Clothes Wear Twice as Long.

The hard work of wash day just clean knocked out. Use three teaspoons of SKITCH to a boilerful of clothes and a bar of soap, and that's all. Throw the washboards into the scrap heap. Save all the soap you now use in rubbing out the clothes.
SKITCH just naturally, quickly sketches the dirt right out of the clothes while you sit and rest or do your housework.
SKITCH is a wonder! Nothing else like it ever thought of. Absolutely guaranteed not to hurt the finest fabric. In fact it saves your clothes because SKITCH saves the wear and tear of rubbing.
Get a 10 cent package of SKITCH

and see. Enough for seven wash days in a package of SKITCH—less than two cents for a wash—less than the soap used in rubbing would cost.
Who'd break their backs rubbing clothes for 2 cents?

Nearly all grocers have SKITCH—
if yours doesn't he can get it for you from his jobber. It's a shame to let any woman break her back over a washboard when SKITCH will clean the clothes better and tidier without the rubbing.
Get a 10 cent package of SKITCH today and see for yourself. If your grocer doesn't have it, send me his name and I'll send you a sample of SKITCH free. Hans Fichtenberg, Milwaukee, Wis.

MASS MEETING WILL BE HELD ON MONDAY

ALL CITIZENS INTERESTED IN JANESVILLE INVITED TO BE PRESENT.

DECIDE AS TO FACTORY

Gathering Will be Held at Eight O'clock at the City Hall. Proposition to be Explained.

On Monday evening next, at eight o'clock, a mass meeting of citizens Twenty-Five Thousand club will be held at the assembly room of the city hall, at which time the proposition to bring to Janesville one of the best plotted here, will be discussed. The meeting is called by the special committee of the Commercial club and pointed to handle the affair by President George S. Parker of that organization, with a view of securing the sentiment of the citizens generally on the plan.

While considerable money has already been subscribed, there remains a large sum yet to be raised if the factory is to be moved here, and it must be done immediately or the opportunity will be lost. Aside from discussing this question the public is invited to meet Mr. McDowell, the new general secretary of the Commercial club, who has lately moved to Janesville to take up his work. It is hoped there will be a large attendance.

WANT NEXT MEETING OF STATE LAWYERS

Janesville Attorneys May Extend Invitation for Next Convention of State Bar Association.

At a meeting of the Rock County Bar Association at the court house this afternoon, it was decided to leave the matter of inviting the Wisconsin Bar Association to Janesville for the 1915 convention to the discretion of the delegation of Janesville attorneys who will attend the gathering at Green Bay next week. It was generally understood that Janesville will present strong claims for the next meeting, and it is quite probable that the hospitality of the Rock county bar will be accepted. There will be a large delegation of local and Beloit attorneys at the state meeting this year, as a number of men who are not members of the state association will join at the convention next. Judge Grimm, judge of this circuit, is on the program for an address.

The Present Value of Godliness

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

THESE are times of profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come. I Tim 4:8.

There is something about this time which should give it peculiar interest to young people. Because the apostle Paul is writing to this young man, Timothy, about athletics. He is advising him to avoid profane and idle tales, and "gymnastic" himself in godliness. "Godliness," he says, "profiteth a little, but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come."

I would especially emphasize the "promise of the life that now is," because that is what most young people are thinking about. They admit the value of godliness so far as the future is concerned, but that seems far off. It is the present that concerns them, and if godliness can be of benefit to them now, they would like to know it. You pay a premium on a life insurance policy for many years in the hope of securing an amount, in old age, or you venture your capital in an investment with the expectation of an ultimate profit, but godliness is not like those things. It is more like a comfortable chair in the hands of a trustee, yielding a regular support, or a bona fide business which maintains the proprietor from the moment he engages in it.

In other words, there is not a single want of our nature for which there is not a specific promise in the Bible ready to be made over to us if we comply with the simple and reasonable conditions. Is it food and raiment? "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Is it counsel and direction in our daily affairs? "If any man may lack wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not." Is it support in old age and death? "My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

The Testimony of Experience.
But passing now from the testimony of the Bible reflect on that from observation and experience. Take the question of health, and the life insurance companies, just referred to, will tell you that they make special rates for those whose habits are supposed to be promoted by true godliness.

Take the question of fortune, and while it is not affirmed that the godly always become rich in this world's goods, yet they make better workmen, more judicious managers and clearer thinkers, all of which improves their financial status. "The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it."

Take the question of one's influence and standing among men. Does not the world respect and value a truly godly man? Would not the world rather deal with men who obey the laws of God than with those who disobey them? A truly godly man will not sell his vote, nor defraud a neighbor, nor deceive a friend. He will give full measure and weight, and will tell the truth.

What is Godliness?
But what is godliness? It is not merely making a profession of Christianity and uniting with the church, because there is such a thing as "the form of godliness without its power." The thought of this text is addressed to a young man who was already a Christian; who had already believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, and had been regenerated by his Holy Spirit; and that to which he is urged is simply to conform his daily life more to the gospel he had thus embraced. To practice godliness, therefore, one must first be godly, and to be godly in the Bible meaning of that term, involves a clean heart and a right spirit which God bestows on them who accept him and confess his Son. "He that hath the Son hath life and he that hath not the Son of God, hath not life" (1 John 5:12). The first principle of godliness is obedience to God, and the first principle of that obedience is submission to the yoke of Christ.

"There is a life in the affairs of men. When it is taken at the flood, leads on to forlorn. O'er the graves of forgotten men. Is found in shadows and in mire."

If fortune be taken in its highest and holiest sense, then the title that carries it is the Name Above Every Name, and there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). "Now is the accepted time, today is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2). "Hear and your soul shall live."

Learn a lesson from the times. In these days men are bent on the development of their outward man, but do thou, not neglecting or despising that, be equally bent on the development of thy inner man.

Mark 10: 17-21.

THE GREAT REFUSAL.

The young man's approach to Jesus was an Oriental in the extreme. He forgot, for the moment, what society expected of one of his office and wealth. He threw convention into the discard as he ran. What Caesar said of Brutus might be said of him, he "intended strongly." He knew Jesus was leaving, not to return. He must be quick to ask the question, "What was he coming for a cure as others. There was no visible sign of any need. Nor was he coming to a confession. He had no conviction of sin. He simply wanted to be assured of the reward of his merit. Jesus threw a dynamite cartridge on his track in that question, "Why callest thou me good? No man is good, but only he who is perfect. He had used a meaningless word without an meaning as we say, "Goodday." The Master refused a title from one on whose lips it had no significance. But by that very act he directed the questioner's attention to the infinite analysis of Good, and in the same breath, to the standard of perfection which that being had given. It was a piece of self-deception when the young man, proud of the synagogue of his birth, that he had always kept the Decalogue. That revealed the fact that his obedience had only been technical. He had never penetrated its depths. Love is the soul of the Decalogue. Love to Him who wrote it, and love to all his creatures. The Master reveals the man to himself as lawless toward God and his neighbor. In fact a flagrant violator of the first commandment, an idolizer of his wealth. As with an X-ray He shows the man his need of spiritual surgery, in which his fortune shall be cut away from his heart. Jesus diagnosed the disease with absolute correctness. If it had been some other infirmity, this prescription would never have been given. "He went away," the tragedy of it. Dante sees his shade in Purgatory as of the "One who made the great refusal." He was sorry, not because he had come so far, but in love toward God and in benevolence toward his neighbor, but only because he could not have both eternal life and his great possessions. Jesus had demonstrated his method in his surgery of one soul in view of his disciples, because they must do the same for multitudes. He looked around to see if they understood what had happened. Their crying was heartrending. They were also tainted with the Oriental admiration for wealth, which is supposed to put peculiar facilities at disposal of its possessor. It is as if they cried, "If this man of wealth can not be saved, who can be?" But they quickly recovered from the fear that they will not be saved at all, to a curiosity as to what shall be the extent of their reward.

The audience of Jesus is infinite. He looks down the vista of the years and knows that the crudity of the Twelve will wear away as their vision widens. He assures them of an abiding honor, but he forestalls too great confidence, he interlards his declaration with those bitter words, "With persecution," and the disquieting suggestion that some first now shall be last in the Great Assize.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
Rembrandt's "Study in Anatomy" is the greatest portrait-painting in the world. Eyes of the attending surgeons are riveted upon the demonstrator as he cuts the human tissues with gleaming scalpel. In such manner eyes of the apostles must have been intent upon Jesus as he said this delicate piece of moral vivisection. In all their own future work upon the souls of men it must have been their guide and inspiration. . . . The Sage of Concord once said that it is the worst thing about money is that it often costs so much. This is only true when money possesses, instead of being possessed. When it has us, it also has our passkey to the holy door of heaven. It is one of Philarch's sententious sayings, "Riches do not consist in the possession, but in the use of things." When one has an inordinate passion to be rich, though still a poor man, he has all the advantages of wealth. He has a heavy handicap in the race for the crown of life. . . . The test put in his specific case is not for universal application. If the young man's idol had been something else, Jesus would certainly have hidden him to do something else. This test fitted close to the weak side. . . . As in this instance, so always, Jesus is severe with the professedly virtuous, but gentle with the consciously deficient. . . . Judas witnessed Jesus' dealings with this coveitous soul, and heard his words of perfect truth. But it was in vain. His heart was indurated. He was damned already. . . . The absence of even the shadow of policy in Jesus' method of founding his kingdom is shown in the instance. Had he made concessions, he might have tined his treasury that day with the fortune of the young man. . . . Peter's rash question reveals the absolutely unconventional relation which maintained between Jesus and His disciples. It was "Give and take"—naturalness—very self. . . . Jesus took the young man at his own appointment of himself. He does not OK it. But even on the hypothesis that it is correct he shows what is needed in addition. . . . Many a high-bred youth of fortune has heard his country's call to battle, and forgetting wealth and social standing, has taken his place in the ranks beside the volunteer soldier. Great enthusiasm in religion has led to many similar acts of devotion. . . . The first step in showing a man his lack of love to God is to show him lacking in love toward his fellow. . . . It has been said, contentiously, that things are possessed only by those who can do without them.

Recovered from Lung Trouble—Now Insured

Insurance companies will not accept any one affected with Lung Trouble. When you know a man who has been afflicted and who later has been insured, such action means that the policyholder must be in a very good state of health. Cases have been reported when Lung Trouble, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, after taking Eckman's Alternative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, have successfully passed the medical test of insurance companies. Read this case:

237 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Gentlemen: About a year and a half ago I noticed that my health was rapidly failing. I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak; having, in fact, absolutely no ambition whatever. About this time I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied I went to another doctor, who, after examining me, said that I was in the first stages of Lung Trouble. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alternative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became looser and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have just been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alternative."

Eckman's Alternative has been proven by major tests to be most effective for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, Stomach Colic and in stimulating the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or debilitating drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

EASY GOING AND HARD GOING

There are some faults of human kind that are too little condoned; there are other faults that are too much condoned; and prime among going disposition.

People who actually feel proud of their reputation for selfishness. Yet there are many to be businesslike, for indolence for tardiness, for inability for similar habits of irresponsibility. They regard all these things as signs of an artistic temperament and expect a special dispensation of tolerance from their neighbors. They tell about their own thoughtless laughter which they provoke.

If you should strip the humors of "artistic temperament" away from them, and reveal their conduct to them as simple pure selfishness they would be indignant at you and think it was merely because you were too practical and narrow-minded to understand them. Great writers and artists, they will tell you, have always been careless and impractical. Now even if that Genius has its faults and is great in qualities desirable because of them. Though genius often writes an illegible check, it does not make illegible writing a virtue.

But the idea that genius and easy going irresponsibility are inseparable is entirely false. A man may be a genius of the highest order and yet have a rigid sense of right and duty.

Take Sir Walter Scott, for instance. Nobody denies that he had the finest kind of artistic temperament, yet he had so great a sense of responsibility that when the publishing firm with which he was associated went into bankruptcy (though he could have easily compromised with the creditors), he assumed the debt of 120,000 pounds as personal and declared, "I will pay it." He was a man who shall live as a penny by him. In two years, by constant writing, he realized the sum of 40,000 pounds. The overwork caused his breakdown and death, but the sale of his copyrights all his debts were eventually liquidated, and his splendid promise fulfilled.

Irresponsibility seems to be associated with loveliness, and many people seem unable to believe the latter quality can exist without the first. Yet over a more lovable and loved character exist than the first. Yet so high was his sense of honor that his name was synonymous with honesty and square dealing. For instance, Mr. McCure, who knew him, said: "The most honorable man I have ever known, who wished to have conducted in the most honorable manner possible, said, 'I want it to be conducted as if it were being run by Robert Louis Stevenson.'" He was a man who shall live as a penny by him.

An easy going disposition is all right so long as its owner is not easy going at the expense of other people's rights. He may manage to live behind the silly fiction of his artistic temperament for a while, but sooner or later, people will find him out, and class him as he deserves.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. (1) I am an old and have dark eyes. (2) I will say of him what he said of her. He cannot be any good if he listens to anything a foolish girl may say about another girl. He is old enough to judge for himself whether you are the right sort of girl or not. (3) I know a young man five years my senior. I have been out with him a few times. Do you think he is too old for me? He told me his friends that he loves me. (4) You may as well wait for me until I am old enough. (5) I like this young man. He has changed a bit. Last year he used to phone me every second day. Now he scarcely rings me up once in two weeks. (6) I had a friend. We were out and she said, "He is ugly." I told her to not insult my friends. Then one day she telephoned him and told him she loved me. I found this out and felt badly about it. I gave up her friendship. I asked the young man what he thinks of her. He said, "She cannot be any good if she did it. What do you think of her? I think that this is the reason why he acts this way." (7) When this young man used to take me home he asked me for a kiss. I refused him. Do you think I did right? (8) I like this young man a lot. Do you think I will change as I grow older? (9) My mother does not object to me going with him. He always tells her about it, but I withheld from her that he asked me for a kiss. Did I do right? Thank you.

LOVESICK MAIDEN. (1) Perhaps you do not get enough sleep. The dark circles may come from some inner cause, in which case you should take a doctor's treatment. (2) Better not depend upon what

HOUSES DRESSED UP IN ARTISTIC STYLE

Miss Margaret Mason Gives Ideas of Costumes of Newlywed House.

THIS is the house that Jack built. But Jill has furnished it all. The shade of her hair. All blend with the new wall. The furniture's enamel hue. With garlands of brilliant blue. And what do you think, E'en the kitchen sink She has designs on too.

New York, June 19.—The June bride has doffed her veil and orange blossoms and donned a determined decorative expression. She has started out to decorate and furnish their new home. Time was when the newlyweds started housekeeping by buying their pictures by the yard and their furniture in a job lot using the model that in the best department store as a working basis. Nowadays the selection of a single wastepaper basket or even the shade of border on the dish towels causes the bride many sleepless nights and two deep wrinkles between her lambent orbs.

Surely this is as it should be for our homes should be dressed up with as much care and discrimination as our bodies if not more so. And appropriate surroundings make for happiness, and nothing expresses a woman's individuality and personality as much as does her home.

The trend toward the modernist ideas in house furnishings is gaining more and more. While the craze for the antique mahogany chest and wing chair is still with us, the newest of modernist furniture is all enamelled either in old grey, ivory or some neutral tint which blends in well with any color scheme.

Much of it is lavishly festooned in garlands of brilliant flowers and fruits, and this is especially true of dining room furniture and bedroom sets. Of course this flower-decorated, enamelled furniture belongs right in the class of antiques but where the modernists step in and make it peculiarly their own is in the shape and the fantastic designs assumed by the chairs, tables and cabinets till they look like an Aubrey Beardsley dream.

Black is the favorite groundwork for the most daring of modernist painters and even wall coverings. Carpets and rugs of huge checkerboard squares of black and white are wonderfully effective in conjunction with grey furniture, and when the whole being relieved by vivid color spots of bric-a-brac here and there.

With rugs of this sort think how perfectly suited are the new furnishings. A checkerboard like with his better half must feel especially as they no doubt go to the mat very often. The greatest joys of the new furnishings is that a perfect whole and color schemes and designs, for the different rooms are carried out in the minutest details. For instance the tiny baskets of colored fruit emblazoned on the ivory back of a modernist dining room set is repeated again as the motif of the yellow tinted china is decorated with the same fruit motif and the long strips of ecru linen across buffet, serving table and the square dining table have the tempting baskets embroidered on their edges. Life sized bowls filled with marble fruit upon the buffet reflects its charm in a gilded mirror hung behind the buffet, the otherwise empty wall, its carved frame repeating the same basket decoration in rich colorings.

In the kitchen is where the modernist really shines, however, with each pan or pot and decorated with an appropriate motif that is carried throughout the sacred precincts of culinary art. It certainly is going some when even the gaily colored pen case on your desk or the chord on your desk telephone may throw your whole living room furnishings out of harmony. No wonder the bride wears a worried look till her furnishings are all in one piece. The wonderfully charming effect of the completed product however fills her heart with joy and is worth all her pains. Something tells us how ever that her husband as he absent-mindedly tries to bite a chunk out of a marble apple on the new art buffet isn't going to be quite crazy about it.

WINSLOW DESCRIBES TRIP OVER DESERT; REACHES GOLDFIELD

Meet Variety of Roads Over Desert and Mountains on Pacific Coast Journey With Auto.

Goldfield, Nev., June 18, 1914.
Editor Gazette:

Well, I will tell you a little more about our trip. We left Cheyenne at 7 o'clock, Tuesday, June 2, over a winding, but good road. About 20 miles out of Cheyenne we met two gentlemen that had gotten out of the road in a bad place and their car was in up to the run-board. They were just starting to walk back to a farm house, about five miles away, when I came along and pulled them out. They were very thankful and insisted on me taking them to a place called the Great Divide at 11 o'clock and saw the Ames monument on the top of Sherman hill, erected by the Union Pacific Railroad, in honor of Oakes and Oliver Ames, to whom the completion of the Union Pacific Railroad was mainly due. It is of red stone, 15 feet high and the base is 25 feet square and is located on the highest part of the hill, which is 8,000 feet above the sea level. The road to the top of the hill is very winding, but good, but going down the other side is a very bad road. could see sage bushes. Arrived at Hail Creek, we stayed all night, leaving there in the morning and going to Torrance over fine roads, getting there at noon, where we stayed a while, and while there met an old Janesville boy, A. H. Keenen, who lived on South Jackson street 33 years ago. He saw our Janesville pennant on the car and stopped us. He inquired about some of the older inhabitants of Janesville. Then we came on to Goldfield, Nev., where we stayed last night, coming over the same road that a big Pope car, 90 horse power, turned over, killing the driver that owned it and three other passengers of Goldfield. I saw the car at the garage here and am sending you a picture and a paper with the account of the accident. This is a very quiet place, not what I expected to find. Two out of three stores for rent, and poor buildings and old wooden walks.

We both are enjoying our trip and think it is the only way to travel, for you can see so much of the country. Well, I will close now. I must say a few words about that Buick car that is running so fine and taking its own line and will have that to say which we can coin into good hard dollars for Rock county if we will get together and get busy along right lines.

TEACHERS' TRAINING COURSE FOR SUMMER

Last Summer School Session of the Kind Will Open Next Monday at High School Building.

Monday morning the summer session of the Rock county training school will open at the high school building for its regular six weeks' session. The school this summer will be the last of its kind ever held in the county. Recent law passed by the legislature compels anyone who wishes to become a teacher to take a year's course, thus eliminating the present six weeks' training.

Principal Frank J. Lowth expects the attendance this year will equal that of previous sessions, at which the average has been about seventy-five pupils. The large number of pupils attending the school are graduates from the high schools in this county. Quite a large number will enter from the local high school to take up the work of the new term. The course of the year will be the addition of penmanship. A competent instructor from Chicago will have charge of the class and instruct the students in the work. The course as outlined by the board offers twenty different subjects. Several new and instructive additions have been made since the meeting last year.

As this will be the last year that the summer six weeks' session can be held, efforts will be made to make it the banner year. Several young ladies are expected from Illinois to enter the school as well as students from many of the surrounding counties. The faculty will be composed of Principal Frank J. Lowth, Superintendent H. C. Buell, Prof. John Arbuthnot, instructor at school in physics and chemistry, Miss Ella Jacobson, who will have charge of the model school at the Lincoln building, and O. D. Antisdel, county superintendent of schools.

All the students who will take the course will not be beginners, as many are continuing on from the winter term so that they may complete their years' course before the summer term. About fifty of the number will be beginners who go out as teachers next fall.

In addition to the subjects which are offered this year, several lectures and evening programs of an instructive nature. Each year these lectures have proved successful in every way and have helped the attendants to more thoroughly understand their subjects. At the close of the term, which will be July 31, a picnic will be held as a fitting end of the six weeks' training.

Prof. Whitson, Director of Work in State, Will Start Operations in This Region.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milton, June 19.—Prof. A. R. Whitson, director of the Wisconsin state soil survey, informed a representative of the Gazette a few days since that the soil survey of Rock county will be begun in Milton township immediately following the big farmers' mass meeting to be held at the college auditorium in Milton, Thursday evening, June 25. Professor Whitson will be one of the speakers at this meeting and will give out much valuable information on that occasion regarding the soil survey of this county about to be made. His address will be illustrated with stereoscopic pictures.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS TO ADDRESS FARMERS AT MILTON ON JUNE 25

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, June 19.—The committee on arrangements for the big farmers' mass meeting to be held at the college auditorium in Milton, Thursday evening, June 25, is sparing no pains to secure the very best speakers to be heard and to make this meeting the most intensely interesting and successful farmers' rally ever held in this part of the state—one that shall mark the beginning of a new era in Rock county agriculture.

Among the speakers will be Judge D. O. Mahoney, of Vernon county, president of the Wisconsin Union of the American Society of Equity, one of the world's experts on co-operative marketing; Prof. A. R. Whitson, Madison, director of the Wisconsin state soil survey; E. J. Ward, Madison, president of the American Social Center association, and probably Hon. W. L. Ames, Oregon, president of the National Farmers' congress. Everyone expects these men to be a top-notch in line and will have that to say which we can coin into good hard dollars for Rock county if we will get together and get busy along right lines.

All Play and No Work

That's the way a vacation should be, isn't it? With no time for cooking, yet the pleasures and activities of vacation—the rebuilding time—demand wholesome, nourishing food.

Try Grape-Nuts

Its delicate sweet, delicious flavour is particularly appealing during the hot months when the appetite lags. Made of whole wheat and barley, Grape-Nuts contains the essential elements for re-building the body—especially brain and nerve centres.

Grape-Nuts is partially pre-digested—the starch cells broken down to aid quick, easy digestion. And you know one feels cooler and more comfortable in hot weather on easily digested food.

It's easy to serve Grape-Nuts. Just pour what is wanted direct from the package, add cream or milk and sugar.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 19, 1874. Fourth of July Celebration: Tomorrow and Monday the citizens will be invited by the finance committee for celebration purposes to contribute towards the event. We have no doubt that the response will be liberal because of the big celebration which is being planned. Business men helping to make the affair success are well aware that in the least aspect of the case the return is almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Betsey Lawrence, whose death we chronicle today at the advanced age of eighty one was born in Massachusetts when this republic was yet an infant, seven years before this century began. When yet a child she was removed to Vermont where she resided until she came to this state about thirty years ago. During twenty two years Mrs. Lawrence has been a resident of Janesville well known and respected by all the early settlers.

ANY store that has a right to take the title "The home of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes" has good reason to expect the co-operation of all men who want good clothes. And as a rule such a store gets their support.

Because these clothes are made with the honest intent to give the wearer all possible value in clothes; they're made as an act of service to man; and we try to sell them in that way.

Suits and overcoats, $18, $20, $25, $30, $35; other good values at $12.50, $13.50 and $15.00

Fill Your Ad. With Information About Your Proposition

"I read so much about the power of the Press. About how the Want Ad Page, for instance, will satisfy—well most every known want. I am from Missouri. I have an empty house. I ran an ad and did not rent it. Talk is cheap."

All the above and much more of the same sort from a disgruntled resident of our city. All because he did not get a resident for his empty house when he spent a whole quarter on a three line ad in his home town paper.

His next door neighbor also had an empty house, also ran an ad side and side with him. But his neighbor was "there, when it came to running an ad." He told so much about his house, in such glowing terms, that you most wanted to move out of your very own place to locate in so desirable a home.

Do your own deducing, and learn HOW to use the want ad page.

A Man of Honor.

Dorcas breathed a sigh of relief when her cab drew up beside the bread line. She had thought during her brief drive around the block of the possibility that the man might leave his place; but there he stood, motionless, with head bent defiantly against the stinging eddies of sleet. She stepped from the carriage and passed swiftly along the sidewalk beside the line of a city's poor. She hesitated for a few seconds when she reached the corner, then she stretched out her hand and laid it on the wet sleeve of the man before her. He turned and stared at her for one dazed moment. He did not speak. Instinctive courtesy reminded him that this was no place for a woman in a midnight storm, and his desire to protect her caused the hunger to be forgotten. He stepped quietly from the sidewalk and without a word moved beside her down the street. The movement caused a score of men to turn with quick curiosity, but suddenly a cry ran down the line: "The door's open!" Everything else yielded to the march toward food.

Dorcas swiftly led the way to the carriage. When she opened the door and beckoned Merry to enter he hesitated, the blood flushing into his wan face.

"What do you want, Miss Dorcas?" he asked quietly.

"I want to talk with you," answered the girl. "Do get in, please—out of the storm."

Merry handed her in, then followed and shut the door. "I cannot go home with you," he announced stubbornly.

"Enoch is away. He's in Montreal, and there is nobody at home except Jason and me. I have so much to say to you," she cried appealingly. "We can't talk driving through the streets on such a night as this."

Merry stared at her for a minute with dogged obstinacy in his gaze.

"Won't you come?" urged the girl impudently. Her color deepened and an eager light shone in her eyes.

"There is so much I want to say. We shall be quite alone. You can trust Jason. Afterwards you may go away—if you wish—and I will promise never to attempt to find you. I will try to forget you."

Merry stretched out his hand and touched her arm, leaning forward until his face was close to hers. "Miss Dorcas, don't say that. Since I left you that night on Juniper Point I have lived a lifetime of happiness and horror and remorse. One thing alone has saved me from going over the brink of the precipice, simply one thing."

He lifted his eyes to hers. "The one thing," he repeated, "that I could not fling away was the memory that you trusted me, that you believed in me, and were waiting for me to make good."

"I trust you now," cried the girl, her voice breaking into a sob. "I am still waiting for you to make good. Won't you come home with me?"

The cab stopped in front of the Waverly Place home. Merry followed her reluctantly up the steps. She paused for a moment while she adjusted the key in the lock.

"Would you mind seeing Jason?" she asked hesitatingly. "He can help you with dry clothes. He will be as glad to see you as I am."

"Ring for him," answered Merry quietly. "Jason and I are old pals."

Half an hour later Merry walked into the library where Dorcas was waiting for him. It seemed as if the mere resumption of clean, comfortable clothing, even though hunger still marked him, had given the man fresh valor, new dignity.

He laughed nervously. "It is a rejuvenation, isn't it?" he asked as he glanced at himself in the mirror. "Jason unearthed some duds I once left here."

"Jason was an excellent valet, and a hot bath, a shave, and fresh raiment had made a man of Merry. The lock of fair hair which habitually fell over his forehead made him look almost boyish, although his face was pallid and careworn."

"I have eaten nothing since morning," Dorcas said. "I told Jason to serve supper here, on a little table beside the fire, where it is cozy and cheerful."

Merry dropped into a chair. He wondered if the intense enjoyment of the good things of life was pure sensuousness. The odor of hot coffee, the sight of a daintily set table, the radiance of a coal fire, the glow of red-shaded lights, and the storm shut out doors brought a tingling pleasure which seemed like mere animal gratification. He shivered for a moment as he listened to the storm. He wondered what had made it possible for him to brave homelessness and hunger and squalor. Looking back on it he realized he had borne it as a man lives through pain under the power of an anesthetic. The misery of his mind had dulled the sordid wretchedness of mere existence.

To Merry that supper was a festival, not wholly because it was the satisfying of ravenous appetite, but because it was the crisis of his life. Dorcas sensed that if her own hunger was real, Merry would not feel that she was feeding a famished outcast, Jason beamed upon them in sheer enjoyment when he brought in full dishes and carried away empty ones. Dorcas was light-hearted and gay, as happy as they had been during their first acquaintance at the shore. For a moment, while Merry drank his coffee, the memory of a few horrible weeks intruded on the present.

"Miss Dorcas," he began abruptly. "Why did you—"

She stretched out her hand appealingly.

"Don't bring in whys—now. We are so comfortable. I don't ask for an explanation—I don't want to give any. Can't you see I'm in Happy Valley for a little while? I am so glad to have you here again."

Merry smiled into her eyes. "I'll obey you, bless your gentle heart!"

The girl rose and reached to a shelf behind her for a box of cigars. Merry lit one, lounged back in a cushioned chair, and puffed rings of smoke towards the red fire. They sat in silence after Jason had carried away the dishes. Their quiet was broken when the clock struck one. The man started.

"Miss Dorcas, you wanted me here to talk. I cannot rob you of a night's sleep."

"I am as wide awake as a cricket. I slept all the afternoon."

"First of all," Merry asked gravely, "how did you find me? Scores of men and women passed me day after day, people I have known for years. Not one of them recognized me."

"They were not searching for you."

"You were?"

Dorcas nodded.

"How did you find me?" he persisted.

"Last night on my way home from the theater with Mr. Oswald our cab stopped in a block, and it was opposite where—that line of men stood. I was looking at them when I saw you pull down your hat. When Mr. Oswald left me here I drove back to Tenth street, but the line had dispersed. I went again tonight—just hoping."

"Who is Mr. Oswald?" asked Merry abruptly.

"Don't you know? Haven't you been reading the papers? Mr. Oswald is the man who is putting on your play."

"My play?" Andrew dropped his half-smoked cigar on the table.

"Your play," repeated Dorcas in a quiet tone. "They have been searching everywhere for you to play 'John Esterbrook.' Enoch is in Montreal now, looking for you."

Merry laughed harshly.

The girl clasped her hands together.

"Mr. Merry, tell me, are you and Enoch no longer friends?"

Andrew picked up his cigar and puffed it until the red spark revived. Then he laughed again. "We are not exactly friends. Has he told you anything?"

"Yes, he told me—only it seemed so strange, so hard to believe after our talk that day at the point, that somehow I cannot understand it."

Merry watched her keenly. He was throttling a temptation to tell everything that had come between him and the sunshine of existence. He felt sure of the girl's sympathy; he knew laxity production of Wentworth's drama was described in figures approaching prodigality. Merry read it through to the last sentence, then the paper fell to the floor and he buried his face in his hands.

While Dorcas watched, her heart ached for him. It was hard to hold in check the soothing touch she would have given to a woman or to a child.

"Oh," she said in a piteous whisper, "it was such a mistake."

He did not answer or lift his head from his hands.

"I pleaded with Enoch. I told him it was all wrong, terribly wrong, for him as well as for you; that when you returned he must set things straight. I told him it was not even collaboration; it was wholly and distinctly your play, yours alone."

"Collaboration?" repeated Merry perplexedly, raising his eyes.

"He told me everything," cried the girl hurriedly. She was trying to save him the full confession of his downfall. She did not wish to listen to it.

"Everything!" repeated Merry incredulously.

"Yes, everything. Oh! if you had come back only two or three days, ago things would have been different."

He rose abruptly and crossed to the window.

"Miss Dorcas," he did not turn to look at her, "what was the worst thought you had of me when Enoch told you—what happened?"

The girl paused for a minute before she answered. "I thought you were—weak."

"Weak!" The man repeated the word as if trying to comprehend its meaning.

"You should not have allowed Enoch to stand as the author of your play, no matter what the circumstances were. He is not happy over it today. His nature seems to have changed. He is not easy to live with even. Oh, I wish it had never happened!"

Merry waited in silence.

"Things must come right, even if this lie has been told," she pointed at the paper which lay at her feet.

"There is one way. You can play the convict so wonderfully that people must realize that you yourself created the part."

"I shall never play the convict," Merry's voice was slow and resolute.

"Oh!" cried Dorcas, "who can't you play?"

"Why, I thought your heart was set on the character."

"It was—once."

"I cannot understand."

The man did not attempt an explanation.

"Andrew Merry," she hesitated as if searching for words which would not wrong her brother, "did Enoch do you any—any injustice?"
